WIRE-TAPPERS GOT HIS $11,000

Mr. Pritchard, of Astoria, declares He Lost That Sum on What Was Declared to Be a Sure Way to Beat Pool-rooms.

A great crowd on Broadway witnessed the emotion of Arthur H. Pritchard, of No. 360 Van Alst avenue, Astoria, when he learned this afternoon that he had lost $11,000 in an effort to beat the pool-rooms.

Mr. Pritchard and a friend had turned the money over to Mr. Albert Brennan, who gave him address as the office Imperial, they said, after Mr. Brennan had whispered his scheme of millions. Mr. Pritchard brought the money all the way over from Astoria with him and passed it into the hands of Mr. Brennan, who assured him that failure was impossible. It was to go by the wire-tapping game on a horse that had already won when Mr. Brennan took it.

The man from Astoria waited in a saloon on Thirty-seventh street and Broadway for the return of Mr. Brennan and his profits of $100,000 or so. Mr. Brennan came back and in tones of great pathos informed Mr. Pritchard that the wire had broken and the $11,000 was lost.

The Astorian's scream of agony could be heard to Forty-second street. He rushed out into Broadway and called wildly: "Police! Help! Robbers!" It is a remarkable circumstance, but he found an officer of the law near by and related his story. It took the policeman so long to comprehend that Mr. Brennan's friend got away, and Mr. Brennan was sliding off through the great crowd that collected. Mr. Pritchard, who was by the neck, however, and held him until three policemen placed him under arrest.

The prisoner was taken to the Tenderloin station and locked up. The sergeant on the desk refused to reveal the name of the policeman who had argued so long that Mr. Brennan's friend got away.
